

Historic Battle of March

A key to the Allies' surge in World War II occurred on March 7, 1945. This was the day the U.S. 9th Armored Division captured the bridge at Remagen in Germany. Build in World War I, the Ludendorff Bridge made it easier for the Allies to cross the Rhine River as they advanced to the heart of Germany. The Germans, in retreat, attempted to blow up the bridge. Their attempt failed, and in the first 24 hours after securing it, the Allies sent 8,000 troops across.

Eerie Silence

The roar usually heard from Niagara Falls was silenced on March 29, 1848, when a colossal ice dam blocked the Niagara River for about 30 hours.

Irish Blessing

May your blessings outnumber the shamrocks that grow, and may trouble avoid you wherever you go.

Antelope Island! A big mound of earth!
 Surrounded by salt water since it's day of birth.
 The guard at the gate checked to be sure we just wanted to look, we meant nothing more.
 She had to protect what lived on this land.
 The gate had to shield the antelope band.
 We saw herds of bison as we gazed from our bus.
 They were so great at ignoring us.
 Jeane was told to go pull a tail then run away.
 Wouldn't you know she had no walker today!
 We saw about 60 bison – that was the count.
 They were sunning on the beach and rolling about!
 The rolling felt great, the joy of it was rare!
 I suppose that's why their bodies looked to have little hair.
 I guess the seven antelope owned the place
 And the bison were using the island for rental space.
 There was land and food for all of course –
 We just had to wonder at their drinking source.
 There was lots of water – it had too much salt.
 A glass of this wouldn't taste like a malt.
 Big Scott told of a yearly round up maybe for health reasons?
 Sometimes horses were used to head up this plan.
 Lois and D Hickman rode their horse in the round up so grand.
 There was a space on the hill, Big Scott said,
 Where the bison always went as if in their heads
 Was a wisdom from long ago telling about a safe way to go?
 In my great wisdom I've given much thought.
 We could change the name of this island to Bisolope
 Village or Antilon camp.
 We got home for lunch with dreams in our heads of "bar-b-que buffalo burgers" – we got pizza instead.
 The pizza was good so it seems we can always have
 "bar-b-que" bison in our dreams.
 -Jeane Lynch

One of the first things you notice about Jeane is her salt and pepper curled long hair; once you begin talking to her, you discover her quick wit and intelligence. Jeane has led a unique life, one that has taken her to live in ten states and travel many places. Her favorite job was working in the records office for the Veteran's Administration right here in the state of Utah, where she met the love of her life Bill.

Happy St. Patrick's Day!

This is the month when everyone seems to have a bit o' the irish in him or her. On March 17, wear your green, and impress your family with the truth about these common Irish myths (or blarney):

- Myth: "St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland."
- Truth: The Emerald Isle probably never had snakes thanks to the Ice Age.
- Myth: "Leprechauns are cute little sprites."
- Truth: According to Irish legend, they're bad-tempered creatures who perform treacherous deceptions to keep people away from their gold.
- Myth: "The national symbol of Ireland is the shamrock."
- Truth: It's really the Celtic harp.
- Myth: "Corned beef and cabbage is a favorite St. Patrick's Day dish in Ireland."
- Truth: It's actually an American creation.
